The application for immediate release is denied. Wilson has not demonstrated that he has exhausted his administrative remedies, which he must do to obtain court relief under 18 U.S.C. Section 3582(c). Indeed, there is nothing in Wilson's submission that suggests he has even begun to invoke his administrative remedies. Accordingly, the application is denied without prejudice. Should Wilson exhaust his remedies, or should 30 pass after he pursues these remedies and BOP does not act, then Wilson may re-file his application. However, if he does re-file, Wilson would be advised to specify why his situation is extraordinary. For example, he should substantiate any claim that he faces a particular risk to being vulnerable to COVID-19 or that the facility where he is being housed presents a particular danger.

The Government is to mail this endorsement to Wilson and certify that it has done so by May 1, 2020.

So Ordered.
